

Sacramento City Unified School District Superintendent Jonathan Raymond issued the following statement today on the passage of Proposition 30 and local Measures Q and R:

" All of us at Sac City Unified and across the state are breathing a little easier today knowing that the citizens of California value public education and are willing to invest in our children's futures through voter approval of Proposition 30.

" We are also heartened by our local community's support for Measures Q and R. Funding from these measures will allow us to upgrade our classrooms to meet the challenge of preparing every student for college and careers and to make our campuses healthier learning environments for children.

" My sincere thanks go out to the many volunteers who spent time away from their homes and families working to build support for Proposition 30 and Measures Q and R. I have much gratitude for the many teachers, principals, parents, students, community members and school employees who worked to raise awareness of the plight of our schools.

" Moving forward, we will repay the confidence of voters by working hard to ensure that all of the children we serve have the high-quality education they deserve."
